

Whitehat Copycat

K.K.'s Patented Traffic Formula

Tim Bekker introducing Copycat Sites...

BONUS

2

Special Early Bird Report for Fellow Warriors

This report describes the essentials and features of Tim Bekker new IM Product Whitehat Copycat launching Tuesday January 26th (with prelaunch starting at Tuesday January 19th). This information is not meant for the public and we ask you to not redistribute this report. Thanks!

Introduction.

In this module I will reveal some super secret underground traffic strategies that only a very few marketers know of.

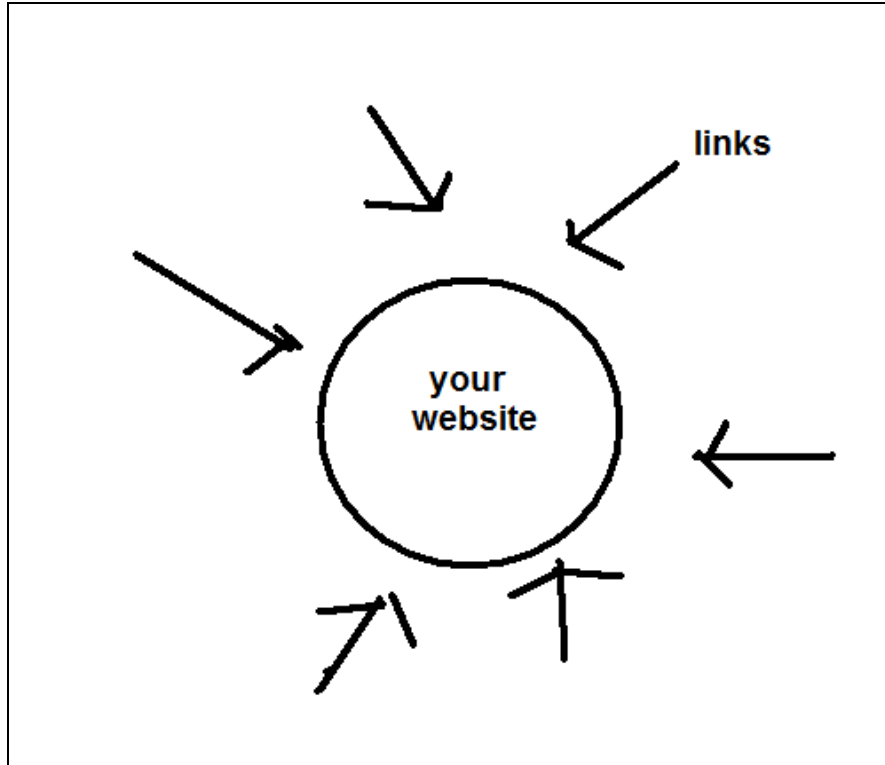

This report is actually much too powerful to reveal to the market. Use it wisely.

Building the web

I will start with an addition on the link building methods I have described in the Traffic Blueprint

Search Engines have advanced algorithms that change from time to time. To overcome a search engine slap (The event where your page suddenly gets pushed back in the search engine listings, sometimes totally out of reach of your customers) you have to try to please the search engines.

To do this you can implement a certain linking structure.
Almost every marketer is building links to his website only one way.

By doing this they are sending all the “linkjuice” they create to their websites/landing pages. The search engines don’t like this. It seems not natural. It seems a lot like seo, and while seo is not illegal, search engines are no friends of it.

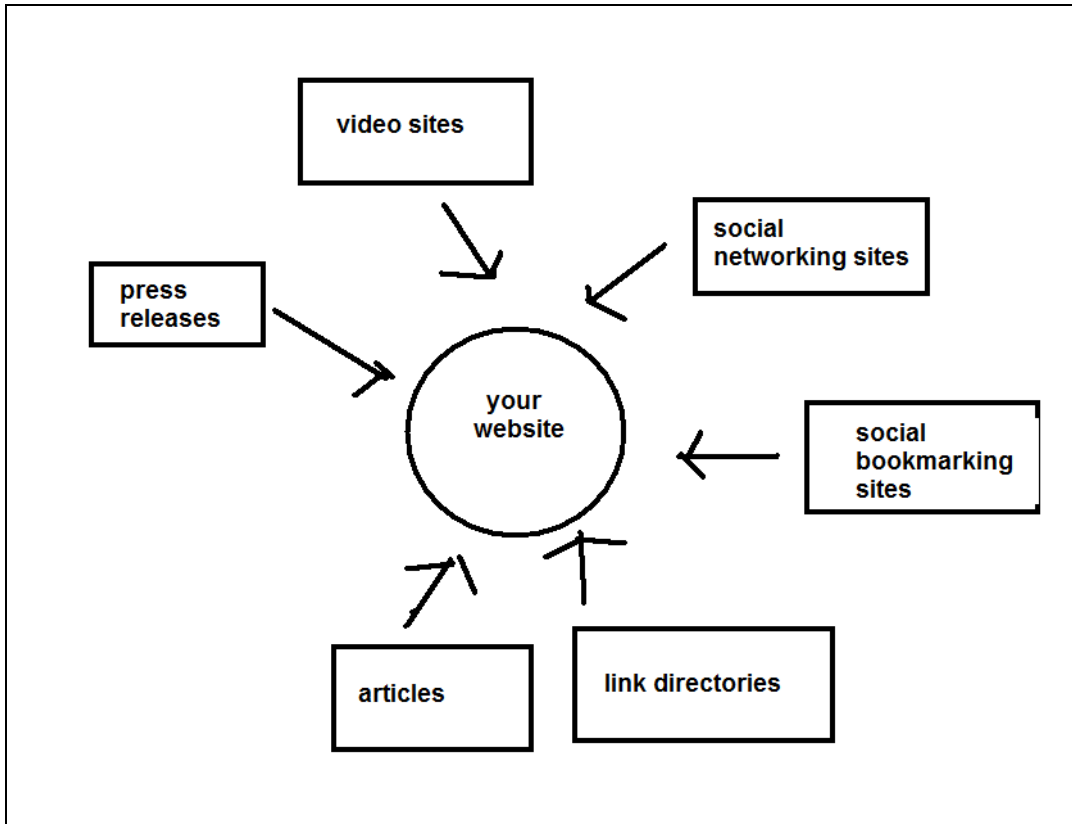

Even more...the social network pages that you created to post your links to may add strong linkjuice for your site, but they are floating around like small islands in a very big ocean.

For the credibility of your link building it is really good to interlink your pages.

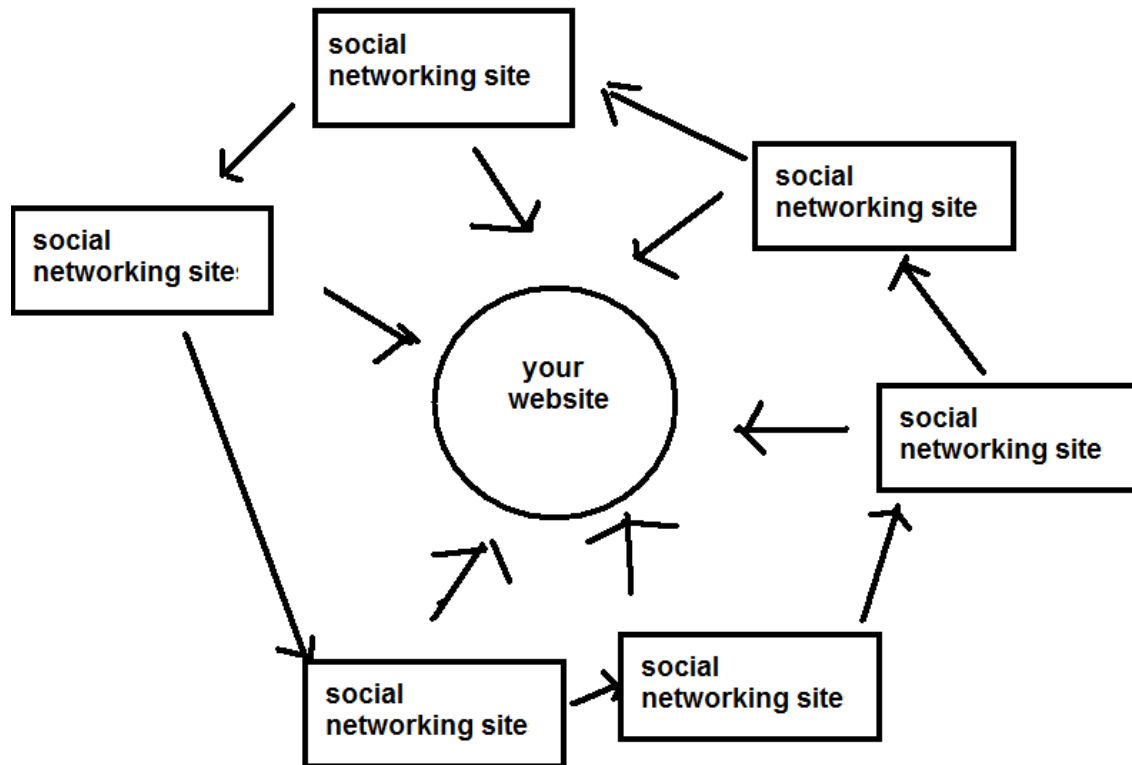

This way they get some linkjuice themselves and you overcome the issue that all created links are just pointing to your main website. It grabs away some of the attention of the spiders that might consider all your one way links to your website tricky.

It’s more or less like building a spider web. Interlink some of your pages. Not all social pages, articles, link directories links have to link directly to your main site either (most of them)

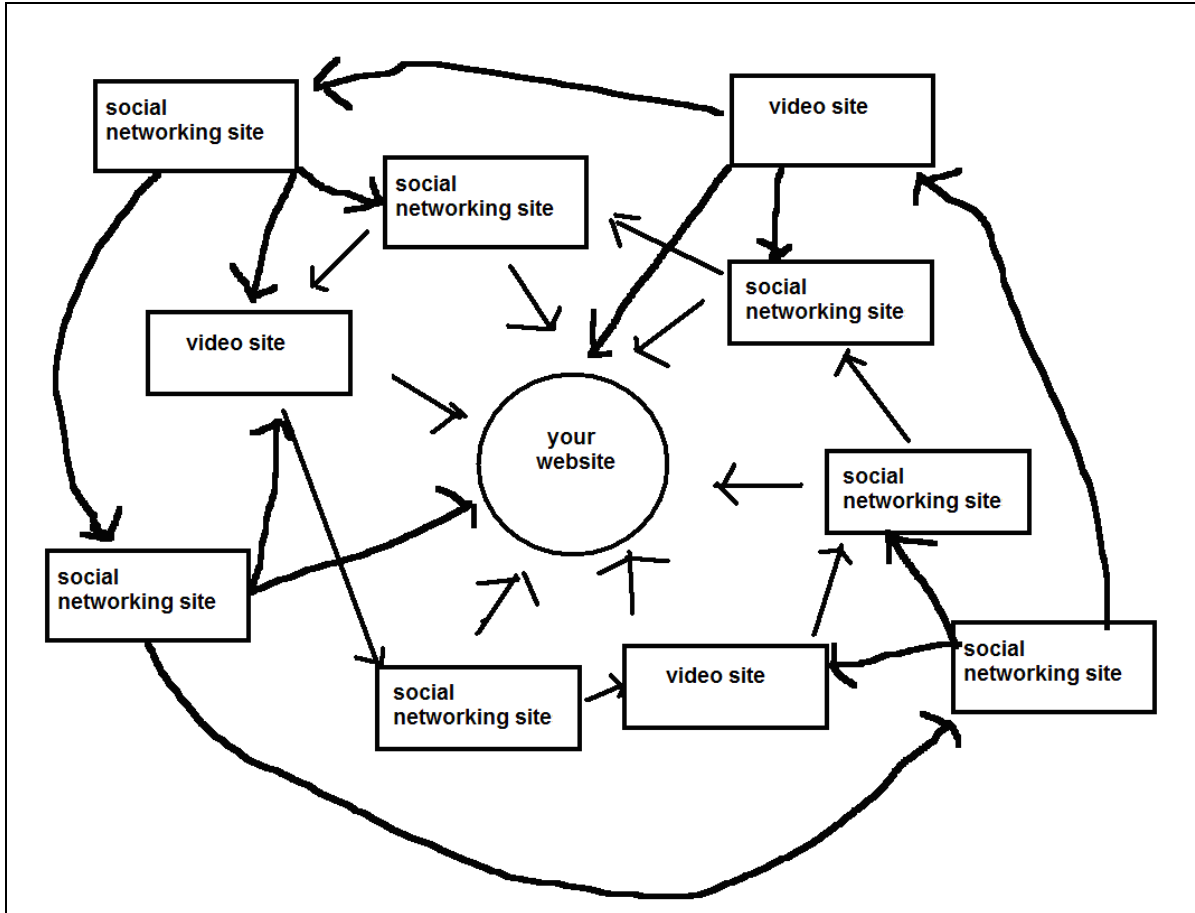

So instead of:

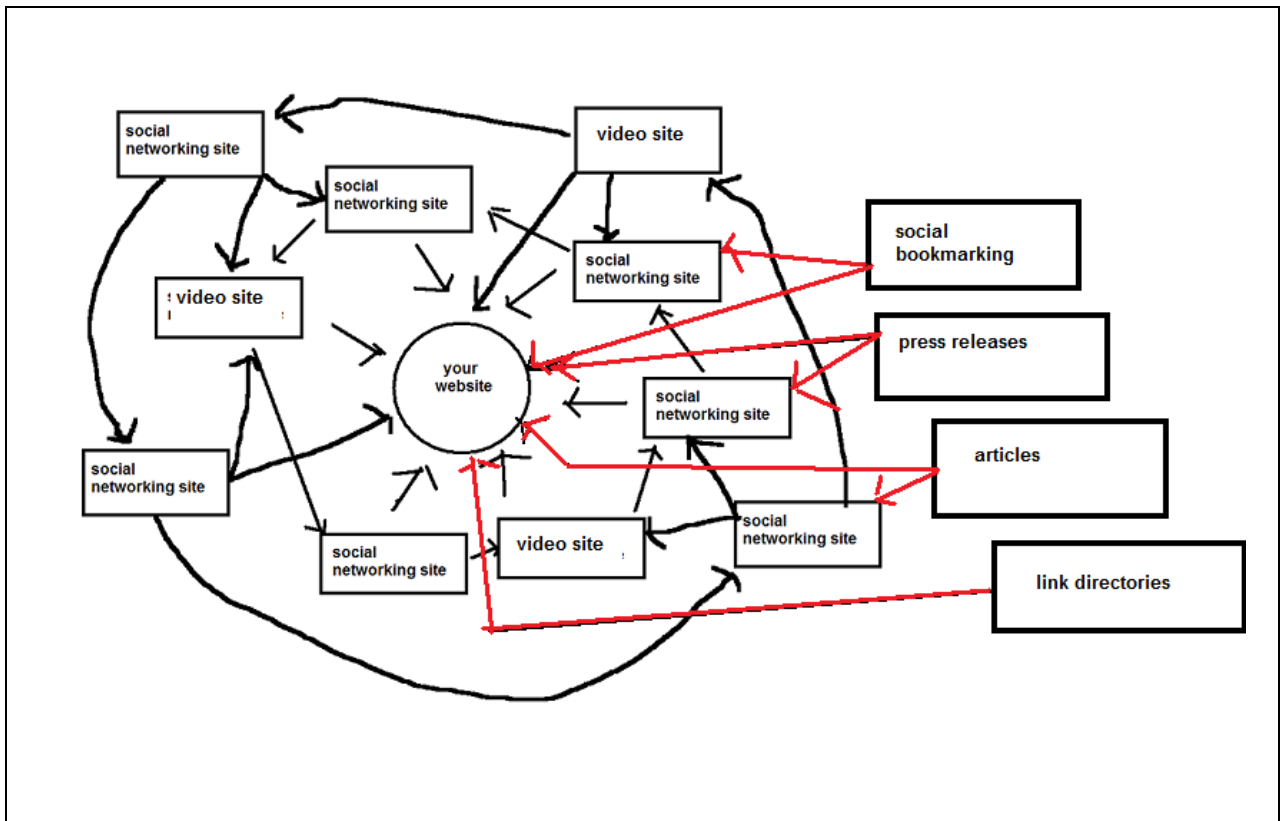

Your first step could look like:

And an example of the second step;

And the third step:

Wow, doesn't that look nice! It's seems like some super difficult thing to do, but really it isn't. This is just an example of an interlinking structure. You don't have to it exactly like this.

Just make sure that your seo link building campaign looks human or natural. Use the interlinking structure and you are on you have got yourself an amazing little used winning linking model!

And even better you will rake in hordes of direct traffic to your sites and indirect traffic through your interlinked profile pages.